

A Day in the Rain Forest

By: Kindergarten 2008

In a Rain Forest on the Continent of South America a blue lion climbed up a tree and ate some of the leaves and with his friends. Nearby a snake was slithering. He was so hot. He slithered by a tree and slithered up the tree and got on a branch. There was a rain cloud there that helped cool off the snake. A cheetah ran over to the tree where the snake was and he almost ate the snake because he looked like he was camouflaged in the tree. The cheetah ate the tarantula. But before that the tarantula ate a gecko. A human was walking in the rain forest back to his leaf house so he would be safe from the cheetah. The cheetah saw a buffalo standing in the grass eating it. Then the buffalo saw the cheetah and he needed help getting out of the mud. the cheetah was coming towards him! The snake in the tree said, " I will eat all the mud up so you will be safe and sound."

Then the snake went back to his tree to eat a mouse and a rat. Then he snuck in a house and people went, "AAh!" because they were scared of the snake. The screaming scared the snake off. It woke up the butterfly. The butterfly and the whole forest heard the scream. The snake climbed up the tree and the people went to go see what kind of snake it was. It was a poison water moccasin. The cheetah came running after the snake too. The cheetah found the snake's tree. He couldn't find the snake because the snake was camouflaged. The snake thought the cheetah was gone. But, the cheetah wasn't gone. Then the cheetah saw the snake because he was uncamouflaged and ran after him. The snake was so scared that it fell down from the tree into the mud. The bear saw the snake and was walking towards the snake. The snake saw the bear and they were going towards each other. Then they fought. the bear was scared from the snake and ran away. The bear saw another animal and fought with it. The bear was trying its best to protect itself from getting hurt. Then a centipede walked towards them and bit the bear on the leg. The bear ran home. Its home was a tree that grew under the ground. It was really sunny and really hot for him. It started raining. The bear went under the ground to help him stay cool. the centipede knew where the bear lived because he lived on a leaf of the same tree. A python snake lived in the underground tree too. A butterfly lived there also. The python and the butterfly heard something. It was getting louder and louder. It was a baby lion looking for a place to live. The snake and the butterfly said he could live with them. The tall grass will get taller and taller for the baby lion to hide in so it didn't have to be afraid of the scary animals. The Indian that lives in the rain forest was trying to get pineapples off the tree by shaking it with his hands. Ten pineapples fell and he ate them all by himself. After he left someone else came and got his own down from the tree. The tree feels so happy because it gives animals food and it gives them a home and shade.
